Nance,

All I got to say is that we made it through Taulbee's class. After a two-year struggle it is about time. I can't believe ~~and~~ all those beautiful cars you bring everyday. I know that you are going to have a great time in college and Europe. (Watch out for all those handsome Europeans & race car drivers) You're a fine girl and I know that you will go far in whatever you do. Never change!

Mr. Fowble after graduating from Johns Hopkins University in 1932.

Dedication

A one hundred ninety-five pound, six foot two inch frame ... a mien dominated by a warm glow ... a voice over the public address system ... a 1932 Johns Hopkins ring ... a frown for a feud between student camps ... a smile for a student rejoicing at the day's end ... a casual, careful walk, conditioned by years of dodging running students ... an open eye for improved techniques in teaching and administration ... a face just as cheerful or sad as any other at a football game ... a man whose life is Annapolis High School ... a principal ... Mr. Albert Wesley Fowble.

Mr. Fowble began his thirty years at AHS in 1937, teaching Mathematics and Physics and playing Santa Claus in a Christmas assembly. He continued teaching here until his period of service in World War II after which he was successively appointed vice-principal of AHS, principal of Annapolis Junior High School, and finally principal of AHS in 1949. Except for two years during the Korean Conflict, Mr. Fowble has since held this position without interruption.

In private life Mr. Fowble's interests demand as much time as school. He lives in Pendennis Mount with his wife, Mrs. Evelyn Warren Fowble, but spends little time there. He and Mrs. Fowble have used their summer vacations to visit almost every place of interest in the United States and Canada, and this year plan to tour Europe. Among Mr. Fowble's other pastimes are bowling, reading, fishing, and participating in a host of community, school, and church organizations which monopolize nearly all his free time.

Mr. Fowble's work at AHS has demonstrated that he is constantly trying to improve the school. As principal he has used his authority to modernize school equipment and procedures. To prevent his becoming isolated from the teaching establishment, Mr. Fowble religiously makes several daily rounds about the school, sometimes sitting in to observe classes in operation. Because of the growth of the student body and consequently the administration, Mr. Fowble has had difficulty communicating with students. This year, however, by periodically meeting with class presidents, he has been able to strengthen his contact with the student body.

It is for these successful efforts in developing an AHS which benefits both the faculty and the student body that the 1967 WAKE staff dedicates this yearbook to Mr. Fowble.

Mr. Fowble delivers an ultimatum to student officers.

Mr. Fowble feels no greater joy than on this day each year.

Best wishes
Albert W. Fowble.

Administration

At AHS the administration maintains discipline throughout the school, enforces attendance regulations and modifies the curriculum to meet current standards. As principal, Mr. Fowble administers the policies of the State and County Board of Education, initiates any other regulations essential to the effective operation of the school and communicates with the Parents and Teachers Association and other community organizations.

To the vice-principals, Mr. Best and Mr. Wetherhold, is delegated the task of preserving order in the school. In the performance of this duty, they confer with both parents and students, control student extra-curricular activities, conduct student admissions and withdrawals, regulate transportation and attempt to discourage truancy.

The supervisor of instruction is more concerned with the actual mechanics of teaching. As supervisor, Mr. Olson constantly revises course guidelines, issues textbooks, manages the purchase and use of audio-visual equipment and orients new instructors.

New this year has been the office of the Assistant in Administration. In this capacity Mr. Earle has been able to free the vice-principals from maintaining attendance records. He also acts as a liason between the administration and Guidance Office, performing many of the latter's functions in counseling chronic truants.

The most recent of the County Board's policies, the decree that all school personnel must wear I.D. badges, was successfully imposed by the administration upon the student body and faculty. The induction into AHS of all the junior and seniors from the former Bates High School was also conducted smoothly. The administration's handling of these and other problems, notably the revision of some restrictive night activity regulations, have this year brought the students closer to the administration. The students felt that the office was open to them as well as teachers and the students wisely made use of the improved relations.

MRS. IDA ROGERS

MR. DONALD WILKINSON

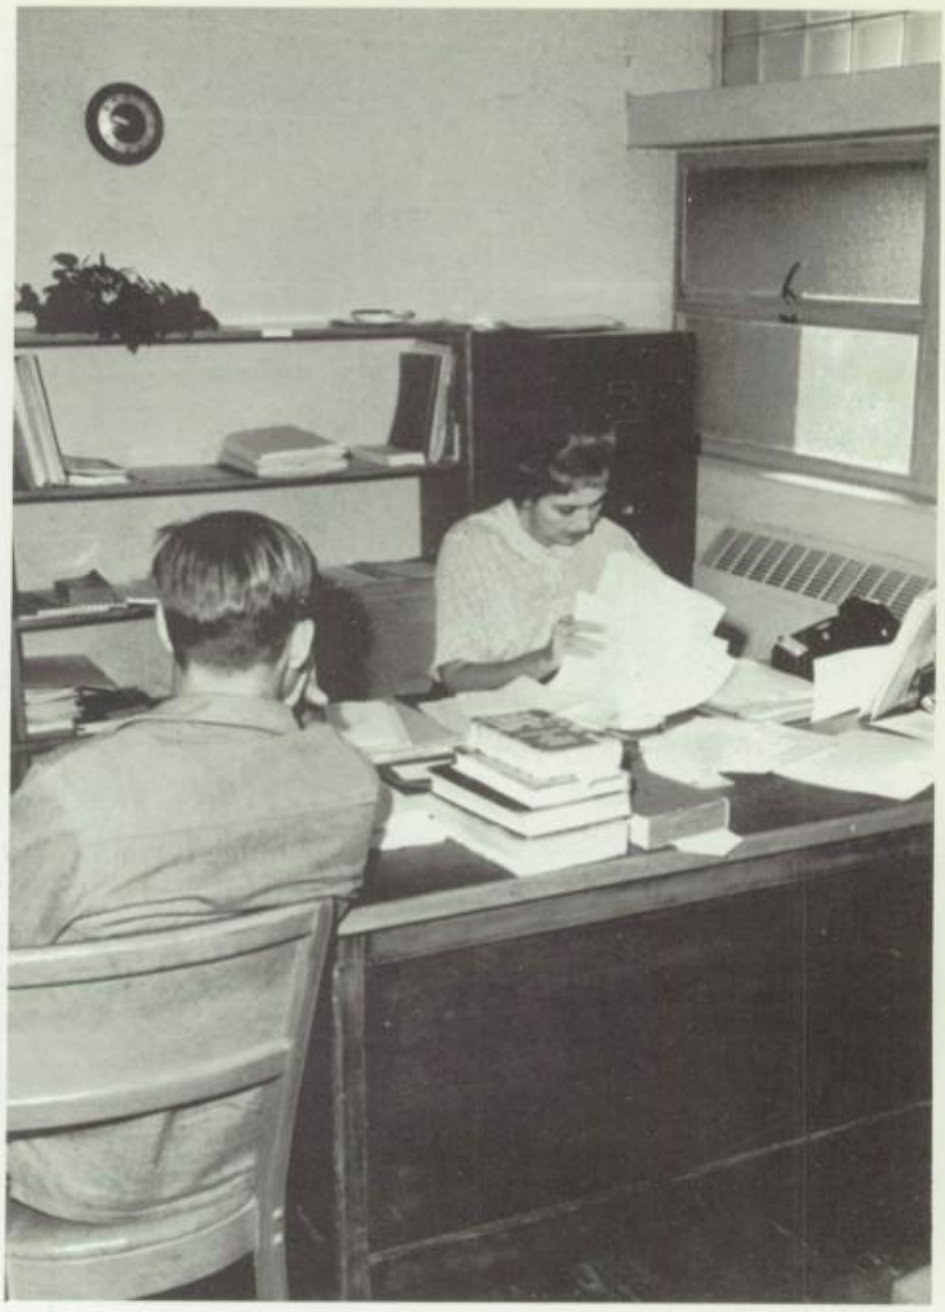
Writing recommendations to prospective employers of students is one of Mr. Fromyer's jobs.

Guidance

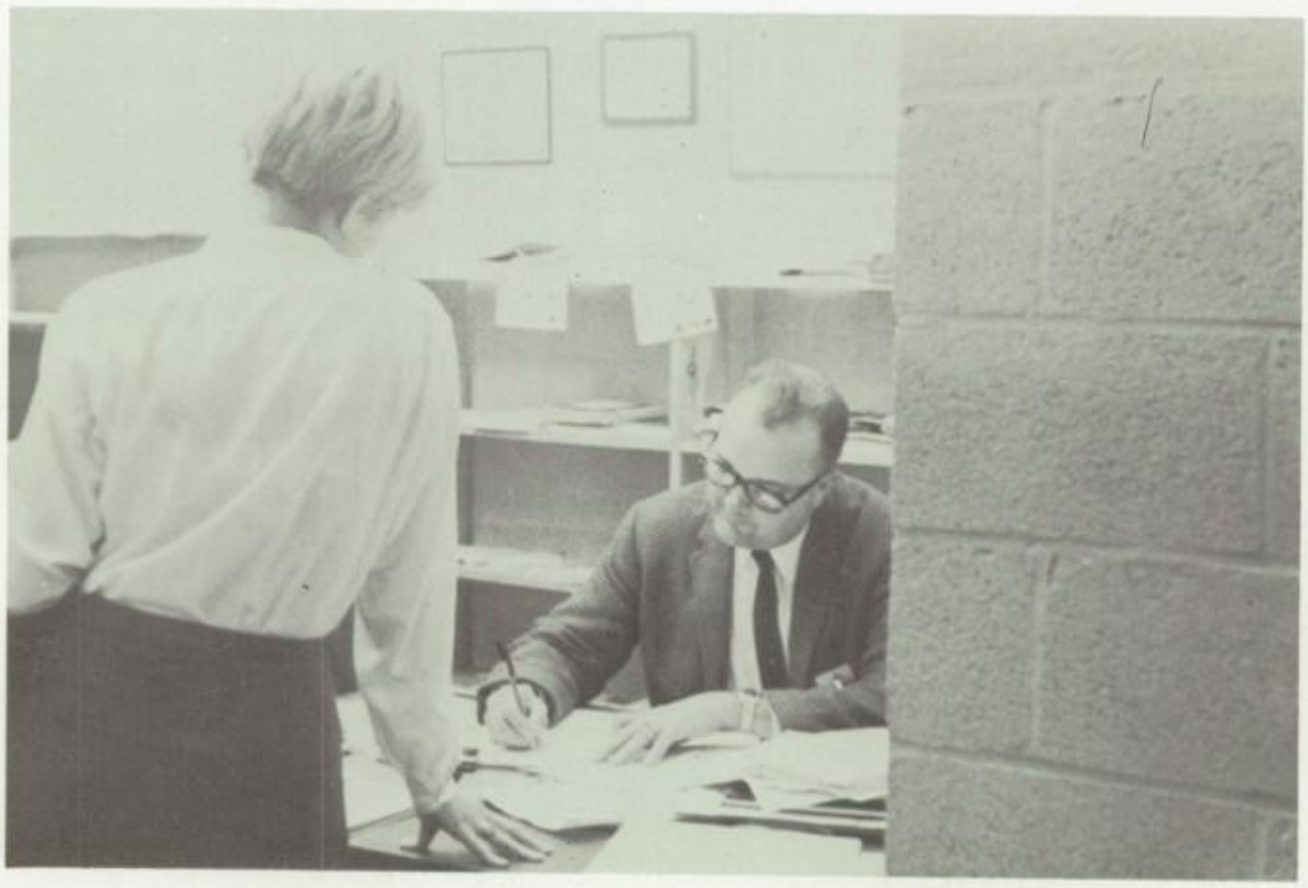
Mr. Fromeyer, director of guidance, has explained the department's two-fold purpose as: 1. "to help each pupil make the best possible adjustment to his school, home, and community environment" and 2. "to make each pupil become a self-directive person capable of making sound decisions in all aspects of living." For four counselors serving over eighteen hundred students, it is nearly impossible to insure that these objectives are met; the counselors can only hope to reach as many students as their limited time and number will permit.

A few of the familiar services the department does provide in an effort to accomplish these ends are processing copies of school records and writing recommendations for college applicants, assisting students in deciding what subjects to study, attempting to help students solve personal problems, and finding jobs for students, both while in school and after graduation. To facilitate maintaining personal knowledge of students, three counselors are each assigned a class with which they remain throughout its existence at AHS. When his class graduates, a counselor returns to the youngest and begins anew.

There have been two major additions to the Guidance Department this year. One, an electrostatic copier, has relieved the counselors of the time-consuming work of manually transcribing records; and a second, Mr. Wilkinson, aids the staff in any way possible. What were not added, however, were still more counselors and secretaries which are necessary if the department is ever to work at top efficiency.



Mrs. Malone rummages through some papers as a student waits and wonders.



Mr. Wilkinson, the "roving counselor", dispenses advice from his office just around the corner.

Mrs. Harden types an overdue notice to a forgetful student.

Mrs. LeBelle cheerfully considers a student's problem.

Library

The Modern AHS library has much to offer its users: reference, fiction and non-fiction volumes, many different newspapers and magazines, a current vertical file, records, and films. The student is not fined for overdue material and, if he loses library property, is required to replace it rather than pay for it. How much the students appreciate the library can be shown by nothing that many school organizations contribute to it.

With this year's purchase of $3000 worth of fiction and additional history and paperback books, the staff of the AHS library has made strides toward closing the gap between its present position and its goal of acquiring superior research facilities. In compliance with the results of a student-faculty survey, the librarians have instituted new hours, keeping the library open an hour before and three-fourths of an hour after school. The staff will continue to consider popular opinion in order to present the library's resources as effectively as possible.

English

To improve the student's ability to write, read, speak and listen to the English language is the purpose of the courses offered by the English Department. English II provides the student with a solid foundation in grammar, composition, and world literature while, with continued practice in writing, English III and IV emphasize American and English literature. From Speech and Dramatics, the student learns better oral expression and the essentials of play production.

Complementing these are Advanced English, in which the pupil masters the technique of assembling effective research papers, personal essays, and short stories and Critical Thinking, in which the student is taught to thoroughly dissemble these same literary forms. The value both the school board and the students ascribe to English is demonstrated in both the existence and popularity of these last three elective subjects.

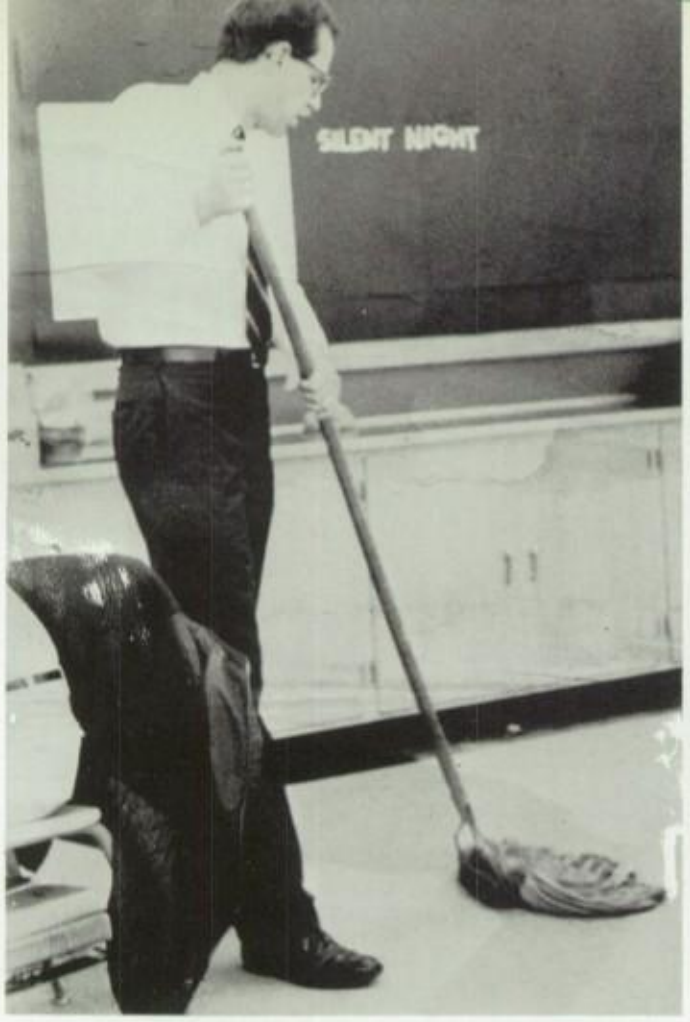
Social Studies

One of the most dynamic and important areas of study today, important not only to students but to every American, is the field of Social Studies. As the world grows smaller it becomes more necessary for its inhabitants to understand foreign cultures. The Social Studies Department is attempting to provide the student with this understanding by offering a variety of courses: World History, standard and Advanced Placement United States History, Problems of the Twentieth Century, Economics, World Geography, and Modern European History.

Another subject included is psychology, which is tuaght to both Academic and General pupils. The Academic student studies the reactions of organisms to their environment, the history of theories explaining human behavior, and the problems of adolescent development. The General course familiarizes the student with basic behavioral patterns, emphasizing the adjustment problems of adolescence and the components of the personality and the learning process.



Mr. Viau realizes that to get something done, he must do it himself.

Mr. Getzendanner demonstrates the psychological effect of hand-clapping.

Foreign Languages

The purpose of the courses in French, Spanish, and Latin is to make the student proficient in all the modern uses of these languages.

This year the classes in the Foreign Language Department have had access to a new thirty-seat language laboratory. Amid mazes of switches, headphones, and tapes, each French and Spanish student can, for an hour each week, listen to native pronunciation and speak and record for replay his adopted tongue. A new class, Latin 3, has also been added. Its six students delve deeply into Roman culture and literature, and learn to write in the Latin language.

Commercial

To equip young adults with the skills necessary to assume a business career immediately after graduation, the Commercial Department furnishes courses in Bookkeeping, Stenography, Office Practice, Typing, Clerical Practice, and Business Arithmetic. For Stenography majors, who intend to become secretaries or bookkeepers, one or more years of the first four subjects is mandatory; for General Business students, who plan to pursue careers as typists, clerks, or record keepers, the same is required of the latter three.

Along with several rooms in Severn Hall, this year the Commercial Department received new manual and electric typewriters, filing cabinets, tables, a duplicator, and a Thermofax machine, all welcome additions to the existing equipment.

Physical Education

With the addition of a health course, the goals of the Physical Education program at AHS have expanded to encompass not only the promotion of physical fitness and favorable attitudes toward physical activity but also the improvement of personal appearance and the knowledge of human physiology. The boys' participation in football, soccer, wrestling, basketball, gymnastics, weightlifting, and baseball and the girls' in hockey, basketball, volleyball, folk dancing, gymnastics, and softball are attempts to attain the former. Integrated with Physical Education at three-week intervals, the sophomore health course, involving such topics as mental hygiene, the effects of alcohol, narcotics, and tobacco, and First Aid, fulfills the latter.

Science

The divers science courses at AHS reflect the school's success in keeping pace with modern technilogical advances. To solidly ground a student in the sciences, the conventional subjects of Chemistry, Physical Science, and Physics are taught. In BSCS (Biological Sciences Curriculum Study), Advanced Physics, and Advanced Chemistry, the student learns almost wholly from his own experiments.

New in the Science Department this year are the four laboratory-classrooms in Chesapeake Hall which assure each instructor of a laboratory for all his classes. The expanded facilities have remedied the inconvenience caused by the existence of only one Chemistry lab last year.

Mathematics

Responding to the varied needs of its students, AHS now offers two basic Mathematics programs, Academic and General. To the Academic student, Algebras 1 and 2, Geometry, and Math 4 (Algebra and Trigonometry) are offered as sound bases for future college courses. The more proficient Academic senior may elect Math 5, an advanced placement college course in Analytical Geometry and Calculus. For the student who does not intend to enter college, three years of General Mathematics provides adequate experience in dealing with the problems of the consumer.

Planned revisions in the Mathematics Department include a Math 4 of Trigonometry and Analytical Geometry and a Math 5 solely of Calculus. This revamping is necessary to accommodate the greater number of students seeking advanced placement mathematics standing.

Fine Arts

To encourage self-expression through art, to develop creativity, and to teach the student to appreciate art are the basic purposes of the Fine Arts Department. The student therefore is free to develop his own creations, some of which have emerged from irrecognizable conglomerations of tissue paper, bottles, string, wire, or toothpicks.

Opened to sophomores & juniors this year has been a new area of study, covering the value of the line, depth perception, and the human anatomy. Industrious art students again participated in the County Art Exhibit, as well as many poster contests; they also maintained current displays in the showcases in Severn Hall, some of which featured a Christmas scene, original oil paintings, collages, water colors, and posters.

By furnishing such courses as Chorus, Band Orchestra, Music History and Literature, and Basic Musicianship, the music curriculum familiarizes the student with vocal, instrumental, and historical music.

The two mixed and three all-girls' choruses have been active this year. All participated in a Christmas program on November 20, with the all-girls' choruses singing Britten's Ceremony of Carols. They finished the year by singing at baccalaureate and graduation.

Industrial Arts and Home Economics are the two subjects at AHS which allow the student to produce something material while still in school. Although dealing with lettering and metal working, the Industrial Arts instructors devote more than a semester to supervising their students' individual construction of one or more wood projects. Upon completion of his article, the student has mastered the operation of many wood-working machines and the procedure for building a project. Architectural Drawing, open to both boys and girls, equips the pupil with a better understanding of the house's structure. For those seniors pursuing a career in engineering, the basics of drafting are taught in Engineering Drawing.

Three years of Home Economics prepares its female participants to cope with future life as homemakers by acquainting them with the skills of cooking, interior decorating, sewing, child care and home management.

Girls make attractive clothes using the skills learned in Home Economics.

1965-1966

We who have reached the now left with remembrances

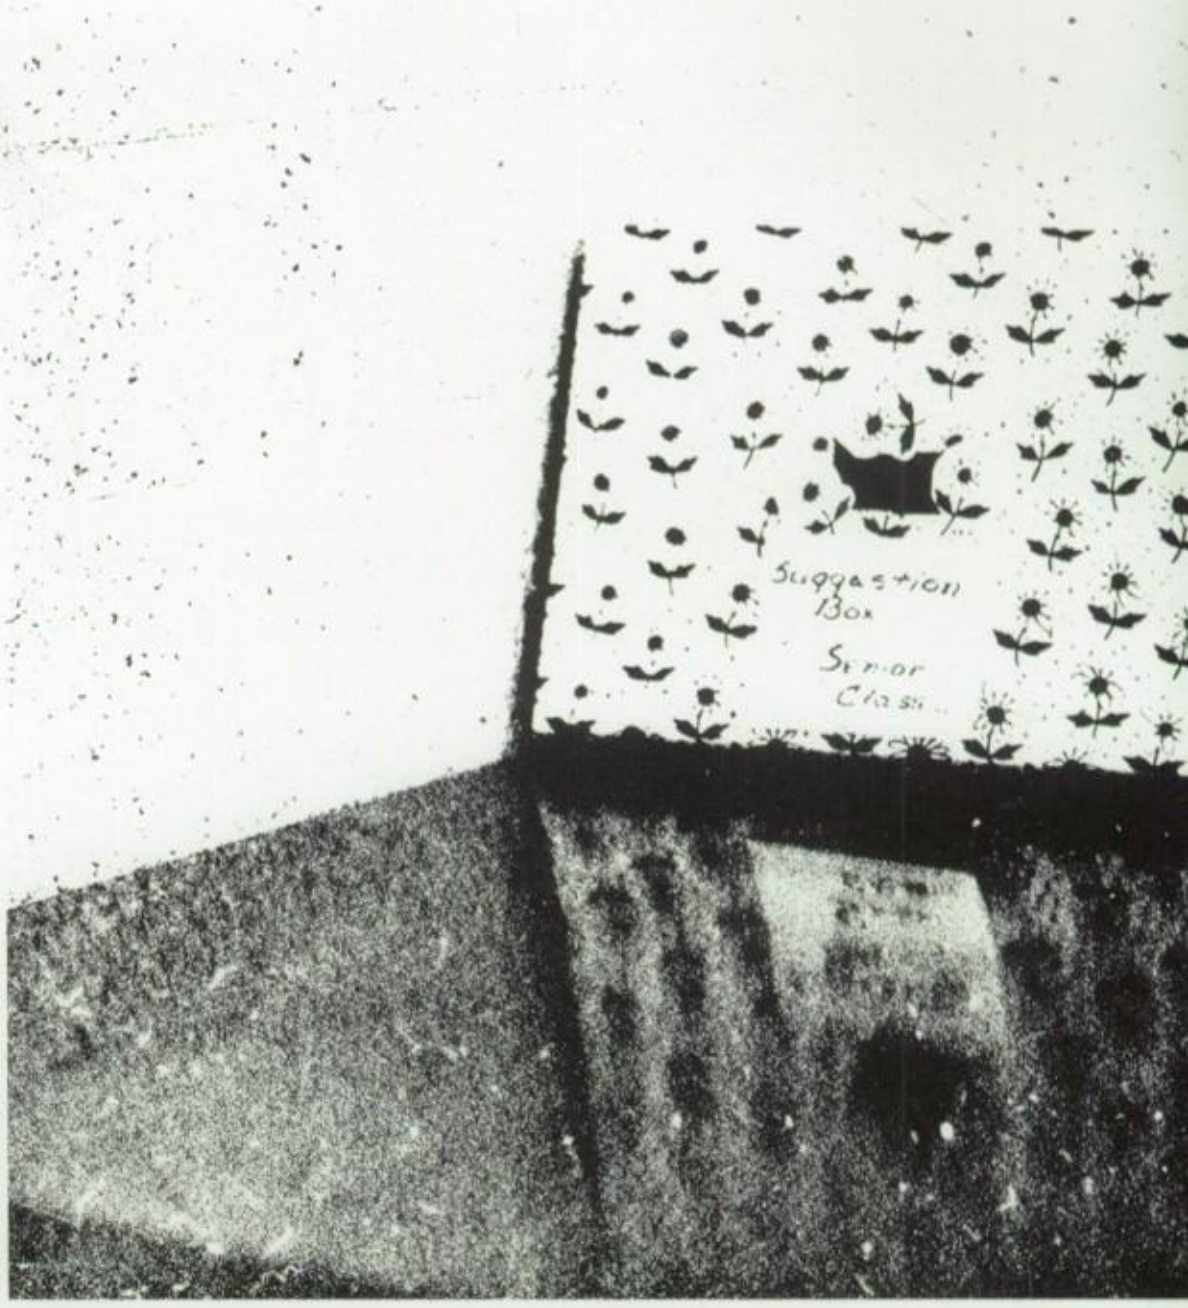
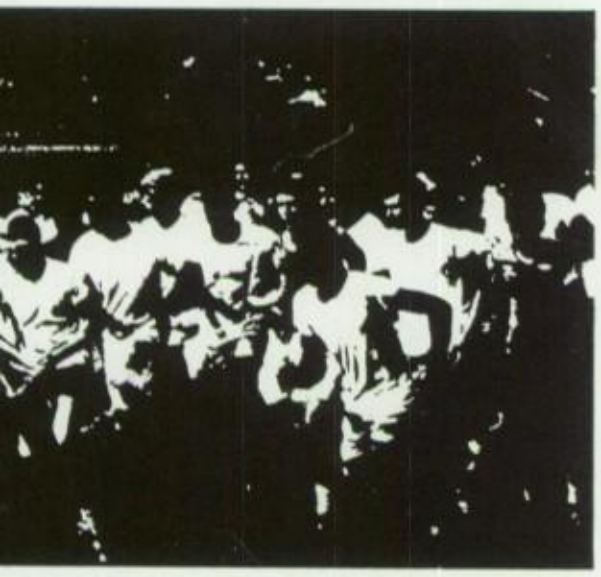
of good times and bad;
we are the seniors.





Seniors

Seniors

The Senior Class of AHS has always had one main goal—graduation. From this have grown many other functions which are customarily sponsored by the class. Baccalaureate and Senior Teach Day provided many seniors with meaningful remembrances of the year. For the Senior Gift to AHS, the Senior Dinner and the Senior Play, the Senior Class's monetary reserves were utilized; however, these all rendered a profit if not in cash then in memories.

To pay for these activities required the class's participation in many money-making projects. The most profitable of these by far were the $1,000 gained from the sale of graduation announcements and other stationery and the senior's First Annual Christmas Tree sale which netted $400. The rental of caps and gowns, the sale of senior pins and magazine subscriptions and the maintenance of a dunking machine at the Student Council Carnival also helped to bring the total funds to over $2000.

No Senior Class at AHS had ever been so rich; no Senior Class had ever been so large; no Senior Class had ever been so well presided over as that of '67. Although their success required the cooperation of everyone, the seniors recognized that without the dynamic leadership of their president, Bill Donaldson, this success could never have been so complete.

We who carry on the quest for knowledge, reaching for the attainments of those before us,
we are the underclassmen.

Nancy,
To a fellow pal on the softball team. Hope you stay as nice as you are. We really enjoyed knowing you (even if it was just this year)
Sincerely
Stella Bowlin

Underclassmen

A junior tackles the PSAT.

Juniors

The bulk of the energy, time, and treasury of the Junior Class was this year, as always devoted to staging the "biggest, best, and most successful Junior-Senior Prom in the history of AHS." To realize this goal, the Juniors held weekly bake sales, sold "Put It On 'em Panthers" stickers during football season, sponsored Prom Booster Week during which students could contribute in homeroom toward the prom, and conducted an egg sale in the Annapolis area. In concert with the Student Council, the Junior Class sold magazine subscriptions and maintained several booths at the Student Council Carnival. Notable among these booths were those which offered snow cones and baked goods, and that one which sponsored a tug-of-war between the classes. The Junior Class's degree of success in these activities may be gauged by the way in which the Senior Class received the Prom—and the Senior Class lavished it with praise.

Sophomores

Because the Sophomore Class encompassed only half of the Class of '69 which will eventually graduate from AHS, its attempts to prepare its treasury to withstand the demands of next year's Prom were somewhat hampered this year. However, President Terry Kershner did not let this defeat her or the class. Sales of baked goods, "Good Grief!!!" stickers, and stationery showed that the class was willing to work, even at little profit. The class's efforts were finally rewarded at the Student Council Carnival, where it made a substantial profit from its pizza booth.

Student Council

The AHS Student Council showed itself to be an active, exciting organization during the '66-67 school year. Through the many discussions, activities, and services it participated in, the Student Council illustrated its purposes of promoting better relationships within the school, teaching cooperation and leadership, demonstrating the value of representative government, and offering the community and students various services unattainable through the administration.

The Student Council found an apt, energetic leader in its president, Cyndee Bollier, whose election broke a long tradition of "male supremacy" at AHS. Mrs. Alexander, with fifteen years experience as Student Council advisor, worked closely with the Executive Council and Student Legislature, offering friendly advice and counsel when necessary.

To clarify and reorganize its constitution, the Legislature amended it numerous times. One outstanding amendent provided for the admission of all class officers to the legislative meetings as non-voting members. This was done to keep the classes better informed on Student Council functions, and to prevent confusion among class officers. Also in the spirit of clarification, the Executive Council revised the Traffic Squad enforcement rules.

Judging from its inter-school activity, the Student Council was much more than a locally centered organization. Aside from being a member of both the Chesapeake Region and Maryland Associations of Student Councils, it participated in a novel student exchange program with Parksville High School. Cyndee Bollier, on behalf of AHS, attended the Bellamy Awards Convention in Colorado where she presented Cherry Creek High School, this year's national award winner, with a plaque inscribed with the Pledge of Allegiance.

In the realm of financial matters, the Student Council discarded a number of traditions. The Legislature, to resolve the controversy over the antiquated Budget Pass, abolished it this year, thus necessitating the return of the three dollar fee to over three hundred students. To help replace the revenue lost through this action, a stationery store was established in the basement of Severn Hall. Although it netted only a small profit this year, it provided a foundation for a profitable business next year.

The Student Council also conducted a magazine subscription campaign, the returns of which it split equally with each of the classes and the Athletic Department. A Blabbermouth Day, during which either a boy or a girl had to surrender a nickel each time he spoke to a member of the opposite sex, was initiated to support Richard Chessher, the orphan AHS adopted through the Christian Children's Fund. Ten organizations later joined to contribute fifty dollars to present Richard with a bicycle on his birthday. The traditional fund-raisers-underclassmen picture sales, the Sady Hawkins Dance, Talent Night, and the Student Council Carnival-completed the task of replenishing the Student Council's coffers.

In service to the community and students, the Student Council performed well. The March of Dimes Toll Road, at which was raised more than three hundred dollars, demonstrated the eagerness of AHS students to participate in community programs. Last year's Clean-up Campaign was continued in an effort to beautify the AHS campus. The Student Council, acting under popular pressure, succeeded in prodding the administration into re-establishing a separate milk line in Severn Hall cafeteria. Finally, after over a year of confusion, the Student Council, by utilizing the labor of its male members to install it, awarded the AHS student body with its own socializing area, complete with four park benches.

Evaluation Committee

From its controversial analysis of Talent Night, the abolition of the Budget Pass, Blabbermouth Day, the Student Council Workshop, the Interclub-interclass Cabinet and the Parksville Exchange Program, it is evident that the purpose of the Evaluating Committee is simply to evaluate the Student Council programs and activities. To provide comprehensive evaluations, the members of this standing committee of the Student Council polled students on all phases of these functions and compiled the results in writing. Finally, the results were either distributed to the homeroom representatives or to the Executive Council for consideration.

Public Relations Committee

The main responsibility of the Public Relations Committee, as a standing committee of the Student Council, is to advertise Student Council projects and activities. This year it also assumed the role of maintaining a good public image for the school in the community. To fulfill these responsibilities, the committee, besides posting notices in the building (and taking them down), contributed often to the Youth Page of the Evening Capitol. The Athletic Department owes much to these amusing and informative posters; it is certain that much of the attendance at athletic events may be attributed to them. From the students' comments it is evident that this year's committee far surpassed its performance in previous years. This increased efficiency could have resulted only from the hard work of this year's members under the leadership of John Wright.

A.F.S.

The American Field Service was created to increase friendship and understanding between the students of the United States and the students of other countries. In keeping with this purpose, A.F.S. sponsors two drives each year: one to find applicants for the Americans Abroad Program and the other to find a home for next year's foreign exchange student at AHS. To stimulate student interest in these programs, the A.F.S. invited to Annapolis High several foreign exchange students who spoke to the student body about their native countries and their experiences in the United States.

Sponsoring a foreign exchange student requires money, and to obtain needed funds, A.F.S. this year sold International cook books and Christmas cards designed by A.F.S. students.

This year's foreign exchange student, Ola Cleo Islam, of Cairo, Egypt, represents the ninth country to have sent a young ambassador to AHS. She readily picked up American slang and football fever and enjoyed her visits to McDonalds. The one thing that impressed her the most was the snow, with all the sledding and snowballing that come with it.

Through the Americans Abroad Program, Terry Revell spent a thrilling summer in Istanbul, Turkey. Since her return, Terry has spoken to many groups about her family, friends and experiences in Turkey. She still wears her talisman, a little eye, to ward off any evil.

The Student-Faculty Breakfast brought on all sorts of reactions.

The Social Committee, chaired by Lynne Rowny, is a standing committee of the Student Council and is responsible for planning and co-ordinating the social functions of the Student Council. Its most popular daytime activity this year was the second annual Student-Faculty Breakfast which is designed to improve student faculty relations. Held the morning before Christmas vacation, students and teachers gathered in the Severn Hall cafeteria for free coffee, tea and doughnuts. The breakfast turnout could not begin to compare with that of the annual Sadie Hawkins Dance. At this gay festivity the students, dressed as their favorite characters from L'il Abner, could be wedded by Marrying Sam. Along with these favorites, the Social Committee also sold hot dogs and cokes at the Student Council Carnival.

Assembly Committee

This year's Assembly Committee, overseen by Jerry Feldman, planned a variety of assemblies to entertain and educate the student body. First on the assembly schedule was an interesting and amusing talk delivered by Mr. Billy Hunter, Baltimore Oriole third base coach. Of all the assemblies this year the students seemed to enjoy this one the most. Then the Dorcas and Tamar Tri-Hi-Y's presented their two annual Christmas plays. The Dorcas girls dramatized Dr. Seuss' How the Grinch Stole Christmas, and Tamar's amateur actors worker a Christmas theme into a parody of this year's barrage of mouthwash advertisements. Later, in January, the Fall Sports Awards were distributed. After semester "six-weeks tests" the American Field Service invited foreign exchange students from neighboring high schools to participate in an assembly to provide AHS students with an insight into the exchange program. Following the American Field Service assembly, General Motors presented a unique demonstration of current scientific advances in its "Previews of Progress."

From February to June eleven more assemblies were staged. Highlights of these were a visit from the Soldiers of Song, a concert by the U.S. Field Band, plays by the Center Stage Players of Baltimore and one by AHS' Speech and Dramatics classes, a Winter Sports Award assembly, an Honor Society Induction assembly and at the end of the year, a Spring Sports Awards assembly. which was held in Panther Stadium.

Only lucky students managed to sit at assemblies

Traffic Squad

Assigned to the Traffic Squad members are the duties of regulating traffic during passings, maintaining order in the buildings, and enforcing general school rules. In performing these duties, the members are actually a type of police force acting directly under the control of the administration. The size of the campus and an unexplained lack of members with class periods in Maryland Hall rendered Captain John Cronin's stationing schedules unsatisfactory. This common dissatisfaction necessitated the trial of several systems for filling the posts, none of which ever functioned perfectly. Linked with the Traffic Squad but under separate direction was a new Special Assembly Squad. Comprised mostly of football players, this squad was successful in minimizing occasional rowdiness at assemblies. The most significant addition to the Traffic Squad this year was that of forty new arm-bands which replaced the ancient, illegible felt rectangles and imparted an air of efficiency to the squad's image.

National Honor Society

The National Honor Society's constitution states its objectives as "creating an enthusiasm for scholarship, stimulating a desire to render service, promoting leadership, and developing character" in high school students. Although the terms are nebulous and the goals lofty, President Linda Stuntz tried to guide the AHS chapter toward the realization of these goals. Talk of a proposed weekend in New York, as well as the status acquired from being a member, encouraged students to achieve and maintain the grades necessary for membership in the society. The scholars continued their traditional tutorial service this year, and were again swamped with the requests for help in all subjects. The need for original money-making ideas—someone proposed a hootenanny—helped promoted leadership. Good character was stressed when students' records were reviewed for possible admission. Mrs. Oberndorfer, the society's advisor, assisted the members in their efforts to revise the local constitution in order to eliminate confusion and unfairness in the induction process. The society's membership burgeoned this year, perhaps an indication that its ideals are not really as unattainable as they seem.

Linda Stuntz and Tom Day finish off the refreshments after the Honor Society's senior induction in the library.

Tri-Hi-Y's

Because of the number of girls interested in Tri-Hi-Y, AHS maintains two such organizations: Dorcus and Tamar. These strictly female groups, sponsored jointly by AHS and the YMCA, attempt to promote good Christian fellowship and character. With this in mind, the girls donated food baskets to the needy on Thanksgiving and Christmas, peddled chocolate mints to support the YMCA and the Tamar members volunteered their services to the Crownsville State Hospital.

The clubs also participated in quite a few activities for their own enjoyment. Both built Homecoming floats: Tamar ingeniously combined a toilet seat and dummy football player to fit a "Flush Belair" theme, and Dorcas, with chicken wire, sheets and black paint, created a Panther which rode atop a truck displaying such signs as "Our Cat's bigger than your Cat!". For the pleasure of the student body at the Christmas assembly, Dorcas presented a skit, "How the Grinch Stole Christmas" and Tamar followed with a commercial in which Lavoris finally cured Santa Claus of bad breath. In the Student Council Carnival Dorcas conducted a slave aucion at which a boy could for the highest bid enslave the girl of his choice for a short while. Both Tri-Hi-Y's attended the Maryland Model Legislature at the end of April. Not intending to let the summer pass without some group function, the girls planned visits to two resorts; Tamar spent a weekend at Ocean City and Dorcas celebrated school's closing at Bethany Beach. Judy Hilton, president of Tamar, spoke for Carol Sayre, president of Dorcas, as well as the other members when she expressed her attitude toward all this work and fun in these words: "Helping others to be happy makes us happy."

Girls' A-Club

The Girls' A-Club was shaken this year when all girls' varsity sports except basketball were dropped in the county. Originally, having lettered in a varsity sport would have qualified a girl for membership, but with only basketball in this category, this requirement became unfair. For this reason the girls revised their constitution, basing membership conditions on intramural sports participation.

The club again offered AHS bookcovers to the student body at the year's start, and during the second semester the female athletes traveled to Baltimore to see a Bullets basketball game. The most important of the A-Club's contributions to the school appeared, however, in the form of the Homecoming Dance, which saw an attendance of over four hundred.

Lettering in Varsity basketball enables a girl to join the A-Club.

Boys' A-Club

A familiar sight at AHS is the maroon and white jacket with the A-Club emblem sewn below the left shoulder. This garment signifies that the wearer is an A-Club member and that prior to joining lettered in a varsity sport. These athletes traditionally supply the student participants for the Student-Faculty Basketball Game. This year they also sponsored the faculty meet with the WCAO Good Guys, a team formed by the disk-jockeys of a Baltimore radio station. To the A-Club, too, the student body owed its thanks for the huge op-art structure which resided on the lower athletic field until it was burned, with some regret, on the eve of Homecoming.

Booster Club

The Student Booster Club, under the leadership of Larry Mc Crone and the supervision of Mr. Pinti, was organized by the Student Council for the purpose of promoting school spirit. Sponsoring buses to away games, making posters for football and basketball games and selling such items as pompoms, pencils, pennants and keychains are the various methods employed by the club to do this. Some of these activities, along with the weekly "Penny Day", also furnish funds to support the teams, the cheerleaders and Panther Stadium.

The Booster Club had hoped to net one thousand dollars from "Penny Day" this year and supply the capital necessary to complete Panther Stadium; it came within two hundred dollars of reaching that goal. The constructing of a Homecoming Parade float is one of the club's favorite services which this year took the shape of a castle skillfully fashioned from a discarded washing-machine carton. The success of the club in achieving its primary objective, to boost school spirit, was reflected in its membership—the largest of any other organization in the school.

Future Teachers of America

The small but devoted membership of the Future Teachers of America experienced a difficult time launching its program this year. After functioning for some time without a sponsor, the club finally persuaded Mrs. Silbaugh to assume this post. With this problem settled, the club moved on to activities more akin to its true purposes. In order to observe teaching at different levels, the future teachers took field trips to various area schools, including Rolling Knolls Elementary School and the Anne Arundel Community College. The members also learned about teaching by becoming teacher's helpers. They were able to put what they had learned into practice and also acquire some lasting memories when the educators-to-be taught on Senior Teach Day. At the Student Council Carnival many students enjoyed themselves by throwing darts at their favorite teachers' pictures in the F.T.A. booth. The F.T.A. members will remember '66-'67 as the school year in which they learned, both vicariously and personally, more about their chosen career of teaching.

Future Nurses of America

The AHS chapter of the Future Nurses of America did not get underway until the beginning of the second semester of this year. However, the few members exploited their remaining time fully, listening to a guest speaker narrate her nursing experiences and visiting several hospitals where they observed nurses at work.

Sodalitas Latina

Sodalitas Latina was organized to stimulate interest in the classical cultures of Greece and Rome. Since there is no abundance of functions pertaining to this purpose, Soladitas participated in only a few activities this year. Comprising them were a semester initiation, a Roman Banquet and a stand at the Student Council Carnival. Plagued by membership problems the club members could not really take part in as much as they wished; however, with Sodalitas' esoteric purpose, President Bob Mendenhall admitted that they couldn't expect more.

Spanish Club

The Spanish Club was resurrected this year after a two year period of dormancy. Last autumn the idea for a club, which had been formerly discontinued because of a lack of student interest, aroused enthusiasm in a group of students who were interested in widening their knowledge of the customs and life of the Spanish people. Through the aids of guest speakers, movies and field trips, the members did their utmost to combine a bit of pleasure with their learning.

Le Cercle Francais

"The meeting is . . . no, I mean, La seance est ouverte. Taissez-vous."

"Huh?"

"That meant 'Shut-up!' "

"Oh."

"Notre speakers pour aujourd 'hui will be . . . Well, anyway, I'm trying."

The meetings of Le Cercle Français were noted mainly for the multitude of frustrated students attempting to speak a sentence in French—and be understood. Despite the frustration, the members, under the guidance of Mrs. Asher, did manage to absorb something about French customs and people, improving their French as they did so.

President Larry Greil strove to provide good programs for any interested French student. Highlights of the year's activities were a visit from Dominique Scherrer, French foreign exchange student at Severna Park High School, a film, "The Red Balloon", and most of all the refreshments served at each meeting.

Debate Team

The Debate Team's second year brought its members new skill and confidence in the technical art of forensics. Under the guidance of Mr. Witcoski, the team debated the resolution: "that the U.S. should limit its Foreign Aid Program to non-military assistance."

Because successful debating is half research, each member studied carefully the politics of both current and past foreign policy. The outcome of each debate rested on the interpretation of the issues as well as the facts they had discovered. Although the debaters practiced mostly among themselves, they did debate other schools in the county and participated in the Johns Hopkins University's annual high school debate tournament. With this experience behind them the members hoped to expand their program next year to permit more interscholastic debate.

Junior Civitan

As indicated by its Latin root, civitas, meaning "citizenship," the Junior Civitan Club of AHS works to promote good citizenship in the school and community. Most of the club's activities, and there were many this year, have been directed toward this goal. In October the members washed car windshields in the Parole Plaza parking lot, and sold trashcan cover holders. For Christmas they donated presents to the patients at Crownsville State Hospital and sold fruit cakes to help support the mentally ill in Anne Arundel County. Beginning in January, the club voluntarily operated the television camera at Anne Arundel General Hospital. After sending delegates to the Chesapeake District Convention in April, the young citizens ran a "ping-pong-ball-in-the-cup-win-a-goldfish" stand at the Student Council Carnival. The members' active participation at these functions demonstrates not only how well the club accomplished its purpose but also how hard its president, Susie Kent, drove the membership.

PERCEPTION Literary Magazine

The 1967 PERCEPTION staff is probably best remembered for selling "Curse You, Red Baron" and "Pray for Snow" buttons. They would rather be thought of, however, as the staff which, by selling the buttons to raise money and by setting higher standards for students' literary contributions, were able to produce the best literary and art magazine AHS has ever had. The newly-formed Business Staff, headed by advisor Mr. Urbanski and Managing Editor John King, operated independently of the literary staff and succeeded in raising enough money to have PERCEPTION printed professionally for the first time in recent years. The literary staff, directed by advisor Mrs. Travis and Editor-in-chief Larry Greil, made an effort to select the best student writing, regardless of topic.

As usual, the student body could not see their school magazine until June, but, while they waited, they just cursed the Red Baron.

For the thirteen girls and one boy of the editorial staff of WAKE '67, the production of a successful yearbook was less arduous an undertaking than last year's staff had frightened them into expecting. However, this does not mean that little work was done. With the largest book ever, the staff faced the uncomfortable task of finding enough interesting photographs to fill the pages. Then there were the cover design, the body copy, the captions, and division pages, the dedication, the advertisements, the theme, the index . . . all of which could not possibly be handled by WAKE's weary laborers in their fifty-four minute sixth period. Characteristically, the staff's most prolific and frantic periods of activity somehow coincided with its three deadlines, when the bustle in Room 209 would continue long after the janitors had finished sweeping the halls and an editor's desk would not grow dark until the outside world began to grow light.

Yet, despite their somnambulistic appearance during these times, the staff members never forgot their main objective: to offer each AHS student a personal, pictorial review of this year's events. To achieve this end most effectively, they virtually stuffed the book with candids and lengthened the Student Life section to allow better treatment of the year's informal history. Other innovations included a new type style, an extended introduction and the use of blue and silver on the cover. But the most important change surfaced in the editors' attitude. Instead of moaning about drowning in the wake of other competing yearbook staffs' achievements, this year's editors were determined to leave a wake of their own. This was WAKE '67.

TALLY-HO

Peg Landmesser, TALLY-HO editor-in-chief, describes her staff as "sometimes insane but never inert." Peg is only one of the few who know how her staff fits the first quality because the overwhelming majority of the student body was exposed only to the second. The first sign of TALLY-HO's operation was noticed last summer when the newspaper was on the brink of extinction. Because the paper was over two hundred dollars in debt, Mr. Fowble decreed that unless at least eight hundred dollars could be collected there would be no paper. Fortunately, the required amount was obtained through soliciting advertisements and the staff was free to publish.

The editors this year concentrated on improving communication between the student body and the Student Council and providing fuller sports coverage than last year's staff. To achieve this the staff published monthly, a larger, six-page paper and reserved two of its pages for sports. A free, classified ads section which furnished more laughs than information was also added. While the price of the newspaper was being raised to fifteen cents, the discontinued, almost forgotten subscription service was reactivated at the rate of one dollar per year. The traditional TALLY-HO contest this year emerged from the challenge, "What would you do with a Sclurb?". The winner received a Sclurb, an original creation by Jeff Dale. For the Student Council Carnival, the staff wrote, filmed and presented, "Hector Heartfelt Faces the World", a satire on the evil villain and the good good guy. The junior editors dramatically ended the history of Volume XXXII of TALLY-HO by distributing the last issue free to seniors.

SERELEE HEFLER CAROL SAYRE

TERRY REVELL BRENDA COOK

From the Booster Club's two weeks of hard labor emerged the 1966-67 Homecoming float. It was upon this reproduction of a medieval castle that the Homecoming court paraded through the streets of Annapolis on October 20, 1966, accompanied by the usual festooned cars and trucks prepared by various individuals and school organizations.

After inching up Main Street, around Church Circle, and down West Street, the parade reached the high school and both participants and observers made their way to the athletic field to view the massive, twenty-five foot bonfire. This annual ceremony fired everyone's spirits for the game the following night against the Belair Bobcats.

The efforts to rouse enthusiasm were not in vain as the unvanquished Panthers prevailed over the Bobcats with an 18-0 shut out. Halftime was utilized to introduce the Queen and court and their escorts to the capacity crowd of 4,000, and to continue the festivities with some unique arrangements by the band and the majorettes. As the scoreboard clock registered 0:00 the mood was ripe for the Victory dance and the soul sound of the "Fanatics."

Rockin' Soul by the Fanatics.

Kiss of congratulations.

A happy expression on a victorious evening.

B-Ball Blast

Annapolis has always had an admirable basketball team, and on the night of January 27 their show of prowess was no exception to their established reputation. The running Panthers handed the Andover Archers a numbing defeat of 80-59 by overpowering them in both offensive and defensive maneuvers.

After the game came the Senior Class-sponsored B-ball Blast, and the event everyone had so anxiously anticipated, the announcement of B-ball Queen. As the names of Serelee Hefler, Brenda Cook, Terry Revell, and Pam Turner were called, it became obvious that these girls comprised the court of Queen Carol Sayre. After the initial moments of surprise and excitement, "Dave & the Triumphs" again picked up the beat and steered the evening to its conclusion.

You tell them you're sorry they lost, and I'll just keep you company.

Panther Terry Revell during an anxious moment.

Annapolis fans calmly express their thoughts on an official's decision.

Basketball Queen Carol Sayre.

With the three murderous deadlines behind and the knowledge that the WAKE staff will not bicker over the wording of this final copy, I for once feel free to write what I feel. However, since no feelings of mine could ever change the dimensions of this page to contain all I would like to say, I will confine myself to offering the sincerest thanks of WAKE's editors to these people:

Mr. Karl M. Kozee who furnished most of WAKE's pictures;

Mr. Thomas F. Wieczorek, representative from Taylor Publishing Company;

Mark Malphrus, without whom we could not have filled the book's empty spaces on the eve of the last deadline;

Mrs. Fowble who provided the pictures and information for the dedication;

Miss Mehall, our editorial advisor who after being persuaded to take the job, devoted herself to it;

Mr. Earle who made one dollar do the work of two;

Mrs. Devan, Mr. Wetherhold, and the sixth period Maryland Hall office staff who tolerated my monopolizing the telephone;

Carolyn Bayly, a typist in need;

the businesses, organizations, individuals, and homerooms that supported WAKE through their ads and patrons;

our indulgent parents;

and finally the student body and faculty, for, without their sale of patrons, purchase of books, and mere existence, WAKE '67 could not have been possible.

Nancy,
I hope you will always remember Dawkins classes
They were fun - at times.
Also don't neglect Traffic
Squad and all the trouble and confusion in the halls.
Remember to go up the downstairs
and down the upstairs
Love Always,
Sabine
